

ABDUL LATIF JAMEEL
Poverty Action Lab

TRANSLATING RESEARCH INTO ACTION

Directions to J-PAL offices in Cambridge, MA
30 Wadsworth St.
Building E53-320

By Public Transportation — from any “T” stop:

Boston's public transportation system-known as “the T” — was our country's first subway, and boasts a comprehensive grid of underground and surface trains, trolleys, and buses.

To find MIT, go to any subway station. Inside the station, look for the color-coded map of the subway system. We are located on the Red Line at the Kendall Square station. (See the MBTA website for detailed maps and schedules.)

When you come out of the Kendall Square station on Main Street, look for the bank sign at the corner of Wadsworth Street. Take a right on Wadsworth, cross the street, and walk toward the Charles River, and you will reach the MIT Sloan plaza. Walk up the stairs and cross the plaza to 30 Wadsworth St, also known as the Hermann Building/Dewey Library of Management and Social Sciences. J-PAL can be found on the third floor.

By Public Transportation from Logan Airport:

Access to MIT from Logan Airport on the T is straightforward. Take the free airport shuttle bus from your terminal to Airport Station, which is on the Blue Line of the subway. Take an inbound Blue Line train to the Government Center stop. Walk up one flight of stairs and take a west-bound Green Line trolley to the next stop, which is Park Street. Here, you can get on an outbound Red Line train by walking down one flight of stairs to the Alewife platform. The Kendall Square stop is just two stops away.

By Car:

You can easily find MIT on a map of Cambridge; we are beside the Charles River, between the Longfellow and Harvard Bridges. We recommend that you park your car at the nearest public (pay) lot marked on the MIT campus online map, and walk to 30 Wadsworth Street. Free parking is available on nearby Memorial Drive, but spaces are scarce during business hours and parking regulations are strictly enforced.

If you are driving to Cambridge from the north or west, consider leaving your car in the commuter parking garage at Alewife Station, the northernmost stop on the Red Line. Alewife Station is located on Route 2 just before you enter Cambridge — look for the round white “T” sign. The subway ride from Alewife to the Kendall Square station is five stops and takes about 20 minutes.

If you are driving in from the south, you can leave your car in the commuter parking garage on the Southeast Expressway in Quincy. This well-marked T station is one of the southernmost stops on the Red Line. The ride to Kendall from here takes about 25 minutes.